ANNE PERRY

Anne Perry (b. 1938) is an English author of historical detective fiction, best known for her Thomas Pitt and William Monk series. At the age of fifteen she was convicted of participating in the murder of her friend's mother in 1954 (the event formed the basis for the 1994 film Heavenly Creatures). She changed her name after serving her five-year sentence. After living in England and the US, she finally settled in Scotland.

Her well-researched, detail-rich, atmospheric mystery series probe the social and political injustices found in the underside of Victorian London society. The crimes that fill these novels are brutal and Perry provides plenty of details of these crimes, as well as the society that produced them.

ANNE PERRY'S WILLIAM MONK & HESTER LATTERLY

William Monk, a member of the London police force in 1856, develops amnesia after an accident, and, while trying to solve the murder of an aristocrat, he must investigate himself. Integral to Perry's rich, unpredictable plot is the Crimean War, graphically described by Hester Latterly, a forthright young woman of the middle class who nursed there with Florence Nightingale.
