

RITA MAE BROWN'S MRS. MURPHY

Mary Minor Haristeen, the 33-year-old, soon-to-be-divorced postmistress of Crozet, Virginia, joins forces with her willful cat, Mrs. Murphy, and her dog, Tucker, to investigate a series of bizarre and gruesome murders in this "kitty crime series," purportedly coauthored by Brown's tiger cat, Sneaky Pie Brown. Tee Tucker (a Corgi) and Mrs. Murphy (a gray tiger) utilize their superior detective abilities to solve the case and throw clues at the dense humans. The witty dialogue of humans and pets enables readers to know and identify with the unique residents in small-town America.

RITA MAE BROWN

Rita Mae Brown (b. 1944) is an American writer, Emmy-nominated screenwriter, poet, activist, and feminist. Brown writes witty, clever mysteries and mainstream fiction with a strong sense of place and memorable, if quirky, characters. Her stories feature strong women characters, and also include non-human characters (cats, dogs, and horses) who are much wiser than their human counterparts. Brown was born in Hanover, PA to an unmarried, teenage mother and raised by her mother's cousin as her own. In 1964, the administrators of the racially segregated University of Florida at Gainesville expelled Brown for participating in the civil rights movement. Brown ultimately received a degree in Classics and English from New York University and a Ph.D. in literature from Union Institute & University. She also holds a doctorate in political science from the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, D.C.

She has been a vocal activist in the civil rights movement, the women's rights movement, and the LGBTQ rights movement. She was the 2015 Winner of the Lambda Literary Pioneer Award. Brown lives in Afton, Virginia.

RITA MAE BROWN'S JULIA & LOUISE HUNSENMEIR

In the small town of Runnymede, which is divided in half at the town square by the Mason-Dixon line, old feuds still run rampant. Locked in an intense love-hate relationship, two sisters--Julia and Louise Hunsenmeir--grow up, marry, raise their families, and enter old age in these novels which travel back and forth in time. Julia is free-wheeling and let-live, Louise starchier and more pious. Pressed together into a decorum-destroying unit, though, they're a good deal of fun: adventure by adventure, they thread their way through the century from 1911 on in this jaunty scrapbook saga.
