

JAMES LEE BURKE'S
DAVE ROBICHEAUX

Set in lyrically described southern Louisiana, these hardboiled police thrillers feature New Orleans homicide cop Dave Robicheaux, former alcoholic and Vietnam veteran, who sees the Cajun lifestyle being destroyed by big oil, corrupt politicians, and drug lords. The gritty, complex plots reveal the dark side of society through believable characters—both good and evil-- while the action builds in suspense to violent showdowns with the villains.

JAMES LEE BURKE

James Lee Burke (b. 1936) is known for haunting novels that reflect both on the evil in the world and the hero's violent reaction to it. His two best known protagonists are P.I. Dave Robicheaux and ex-Texas Ranger Billy Bob Holland. Set in the rural South, primarily Louisiana and Texas, Burke's complex, action-filled stories focus on cases of corruption, political abuse, and similar moral and social issues. He has won two Edgar Awards, has been presented with the Grand Master Award from the Mystery Writers of America, and was also nominated for a Pulitzer award for his standalone novel, The Lost Get-Back Boogie.

Burke was born in Houston, TX, but spent most of his childhood on the Texas-Louisiana Gulf Coast. He attended the University of Louisiana at Lafayette and ultimately received a BA and MA in English Literature University of Missouri. At various times he worked as a truck driver for the U.S. Forest Service, as a newspaper reporter, as a social worker on Skid Row, Los Angeles, as a land surveyor in Colorado, in the Louisiana State unemployment system, and in the Job Corps in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Eastern Kentucky. Burke and his wife Pearl live in Lolo, MT. They have four children, including Alafair Burke the mystery writer.
